

I would like to thank the unknown (to me) publisher of the wonderful collection of Keeper glyphs at <http://thief.nov.ru/glyphs.htm>. Without that site, my glyph collection would be far fewer in number. I would also like to thank all those who replied to my thread on glyph definitions. I tried to use the spirit of all the suggestions, even though I may not have taken your specific suggestion. In particular, I would like to thank demagogue for the comparative analysis of Keeper glyphs to Chinese & Japanese characters. Where possible, I incorporated his suggested translations. Finally, I have to thank anyone who posted anything about glyphs at ttlg. I read what everyone wrote, thought about it, and did what seemed to me to be most in keeping with consensus opinion (and with what Third Keeper Mayer whispered in my ear as I was doing this).

All that aside, textum quam diligentissime perscrutavi et recensui — sed si quemlibet errorem invenies, mihi, quaeso, scribe. (At least I think that's what I mean to say, my high school Latin is more than 40 years rusty.) In other words, if I got anything wrong, it is all my fault, please let me know and I'll try and make it right. Just PM me at ttlg: LarryG.
